“The bionic technology is impressive, but it was the personal connection that really made a difference.”

Sgt. Peter Connell
Army—Retired and above knee amputee

Bionic Technology—the future is now and Next Step Clinics are at the forefront of the industry. We are a team of professionals who understand that to design the right fit, you must first understand the person. We call that understanding e-motion.

It is not a term you normally relate to the art of Bionics & Prosthetics. Yet, it is the source of how technology for Peter, and other Next Step Clinics patients, is melded into everything we do. It is personal at the highest level. It is expertise that is shared—one patient at a time, every time.

This understanding is the first step to a better life...just ask Peter.

During the 2022-2023 school year, the Millyard Museum had visits from over 2,100 school children!
Henry W. Herrick (1824-1906) was a talented wood engraver, book illustrator, and watercolorist. After spending his childhood in New Hampshire, Herrick began his career as an artist in New York, working for several prominent publishers, as well as teaching at the School of Design for Women. In 1865, he returned to Manchester where he continued to work as a designer and engraver, as well as take up the art of watercolor. Herrick was very involved in civic life in Manchester. He was active with the Manchester City Mission and was a founder of both the Manchester Art Association and the Manchester Historic Association.

This exhibition features many of his works from throughout his long and illustrious career.

In his later years, Henry W. Herrick spent his time in Manchester painting watercolors and teaching art in his home at 97 Russell Street. He was a familiar figure around town, often seen walking the streets well-dressed wearing a stovepipe hat and carrying his easel and box of paints. At the time of his death, he was affectionately remembered as “Manchester’s Grand Old Man of Art.”
